DON in corn has been an unwelcome and ongoing issue for farmers, biofuel producers, and livestock feeders. At POET, we invest time and resources to better understand issues so we can communicate solutions to agronomic challenges like DON in corn.

During the meeting, we'll share what we've learned through research and collaborative conversations with partners in agronomy and academia, why DON is an issue in the feed market, and our desire to help promote solutions to benefit our farmers.

Please join us in-person or virtually for this informative presentation.
